The Persona series, renowned for its caliber of high-quality storytelling, gameplay scenarios, and worldly views, is unlike any other. And Persona Q: Shadow of the Labyrinth will be the first RPG in the Persona series since 2008. The most recent in the series is Persona 4, which was so popular it spawned several spin-off titles and still has one of the most fervently loyal fanbases to date. Persona Q also draws on the Etrian Odyssey series, with its own growing core of engaged gamers drawn to its unique playability and map-making mechanic. Persona Q takes the best parts of these two long-running RPG series and creates a monumental new experience for the Nintendo 3DS.

Classic Characters, New Story!

Persona Q has an all-new adventure that pulls in the classic characters from Persona 3 and Persona 4.Players can start with either the main character from Persona 3 or Persona 4, and their choice will unlock different event scenes! Of course, once they finish one playthrough, they can go back and explore the second route, totalling 80-100 hours of gameplay!

First Persona title ever to be on a Nintendo platform

For the first time in history, the Persona series will finally arrive on a Nintendo system: the Nintendo 3DS. Users will roam through a 3D labyrinth and use the system's touchscreen to chart their course, marking dangers, treasures, and more along the way...
